

UNIVERSITÀ
DEGLI STUDI
DI MILANO

Fondazione
CARIPLO

LAKE COMO SCHOOL OF ADVANCED STUDIES

CALL FOR PARTICIPATION

Lake Como School in Advanced Studies -School in Social Sciences

Life Chances in a (un)sustainable World:

structural transformations and alternative socio-cultural visions

Villa del Grumello, Como, June 12 -16, 2023

<https://hris2023.lakecomoschool.org/>

Under the spell of globalization and democratization, there was the great expectation that the world would become a better place by the spread of growth and wealth, democracy, and participation as well as individual rights and emancipatory politics. Thirty years later, we envisage results of a world in increasing disorder and turmoil, but also accompanied with new hopes for a change of paradigm.

While a great portion of the poor population has been lifted out of absolute poverty, especially in the non “Western” world, together with a new desire for active participation, economic and social inequalities are skyrocketing due to the rise and dominance of the super-rich class. The gap between the top one per cent and the rest of the population is widening, loosening the social tie which social peace and prosperity is built upon, and diminishing people’s confidence in politics, especially the regulatory power of the State. This situation is worsened by the ongoing waves of crisis we globally face at various levels: abrupt weather events due to climate change, the burst of regional conflicts that may escalate at a global level, recurrent pandemic crisis and recurrent migration and refugee crisis, are all entangled with the side effects of economic growth: pollution, exploitation of natural resources and habitat, financial crisis etc. The global risk society redefines in new ways not only relations of power between nations and supra-national institutions, but also class relations at the national and transnational level. At the same time, it calls for a paradigmatic change that should envision new and more sustainable ways of life, the reduction of inequalities, and new forms of political participation and organization.

Given these major challenges, what about the life chances, and different normative views on life-chances, in a (un)sustainable world? How do structural transformations affect social inequality? What socio-cultural visions may sustain social change to overcome these major problems?

Through the contribution of renowned experts in the social sciences, the field will be examined by relevant theoretical approaches and significant case-based empirical material. Participants are asked to actively contribute to dedicated sessions, in which they present their own research project to class and discuss it with the teaching staff. The geographical focus of the school lies on Europe and other countries from the Global North but contributions focusing on other areas are encouraged and welcome.

The School

Villa del Grumello
Via per Cernobbio 11
22100 Como, Italy
Tel. +39. 031. 579813
Fax +39. 031. 573395
E-mail: info@lakecomoschool.org
www.lakecomoschool.org

UNIVERSITÀ
DEGLI STUDI
DI MILANO

Fondazione
CARIPLO

LAKE COMO SCHOOL OF ADVANCED STUDIES

Scientific Committee

Peter Fleming, University of Technology Sidney; Phil Gorski, Yale University, New Haven, CT; Mauro Magatti, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore; Monica Martinelli, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore; Hans-Peter Müller, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin; Anja Röcke, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin; Cesare Silla, Università degli Studi di Urbino 'Carlo Bo'.

Teaching Staff

Anne Alombert; Université Paris 8; Katrin Bastian, The Marshall Center, Garmisch-Partenkirchen; Peter Fleming, University of Technology Sidney; Chiara Giaccardi, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore; Gaël Giraud, Georgetown University, Washington D.C.; Mauro Magatti, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore; Hans-Peter Müller, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin; Anja Röcke, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin;

The LCSSS is looking for doctoral students and young researchers who study and work on the following topics:

- Impacts on life-chances through climate change
- Economic transformations and their impact on life-chances
- Social inequalities within or across countries; the influence of "super rich" people on society
- Cultural (secular, spiritual or religious) justifications or ways of dealing with the current situation
- Alternative visions and social practices to the present order

The registration fee is EUR 500,00 (VAT 22% incl), inclusive of lectures, course materials, coffee breaks, lunches, excursion, the social dinner and wi-fi connection; travel costs and accommodation are not included.

If interested, please submit the application (including an updated CV, a letter of intent including a description of research project, and a 500-word bio) by filling the form at

<https://hris2023.lakecomoschool.org/application/>

Application deadline: April 10, 2023.

Notification of Acceptance: April 21, 2023.

Registration and payment: May 8, 2023.

The School

Villa del Grumello
Via per Cernobbio 11
22100 Como, Italy
Tel. +39. 031. 579813
Fax +39. 031. 573395
E-mail: info@lakecomoschool.org
www.lakecomoschool.org