- Critical thinking, analytical skills and openness towards people and new perspectives
- Knowledge and ideally experience in the use of qualitative data collection and analysis methods and relevant software packages (e.g. Maxqda, Nvivo)
- Knowledge of at least two of the following topics and willingness to engage in targeted academic development in this area:
 - qualitative research and theoretical approaches to integration research in the fields of youth, family and/or older people
 - qualitative research and theoretical approaches in the field of biographical research and intergenerational relations
 - qualitative research and theoretical approaches in the field of intergenerational learning
- Knowledge and ideally already experience in working with digital media in research (data collection, presentation of research results) is an advantage.
- Ability to work in interdisciplinary and international teams, to develop and implement interdisciplinary and multi-method research designs
- Excellent oral and written communication skills in German and English
- Given the international focus of the project, knowledge of other languages is an advantage

Tasks

- Involvement in the implementation of the international research project "Life strategies of Young Labour Migrants in Ageing Societies" (LYMAS), in particular the collection, processing and analysis of qualitative data (interviews, digital diaries, ethnographic research methods).
- Collaboration with the international team of researchers involved in the project
- Publications in the form of articles in peer-reviewed journals, reports and other specialist publications
- Participation in academic and stakeholder events in Germany and abroad
- Support in the organisation of team workshops and conferences
- Linking the project work with a suitable doctoral project at the Humboldt University of Berlin in the Faculty of Cultural, Social and Educational Sciences.

Further requirements

You have relevant research experience (ideally international) and have experience in preparing scientific results for professional audiences, the media or the general public. A high degree of organisational ability as well as a high degree of perceptiveness and flexibility. Very good German and English skills are essential, other languages are desirable.

What we offer

The position is initially limited to three years on the basis of the Wissenschaftszeitvertragsgesetz (WissZeitVG). Remuneration is in accordance with remuneration group/scale E13 TVöD. Place of work is Berlin.

DeZIM e.V. ensures the professional equality of persons according to the Federal Equal Opportunities Act (BGleG). It strives for a balanced gender proportion as well as a balanced proportion of persons with and without a migration background. Applications from women, people of colour and applicants with a history of flight or family migration are also expressly welcome. Applications from people who work in the above-mentioned fields from marginalised perspectives are encouraged. Preference will be given to persons with disabilities who have the equivalent level of qualifications.
